Alaina, you were the only person in the entire PUC, that ratepayers ever had any modicum of respect for. You never took the, I am God, I don't deal with outsiders and I know everything attitude, that your fellow PUC employees are engulfed in.

You listened to the ratepayers and actually went forward with issues that were presented to you, ie, the deposit issue. Then miraculously your staff, in their response, decides its something to look into, when they were informed ad nauseum during the flex pay docket, regarding this issue. Guess when it comes from one of their 'own', it warrants attention.

Your attitude changed when Sandoval replaced you as chair, and it appeared that you were afraid for your job and you backed off and just agreed with whatever was presented, and it was noticed by everyone. At least now, you can be assured of job security with the Transportation Authority.

We wish you the best in your new position, you are surely going to be missed!

Davey what can we say, you will not be missed by any of the 2 million ratepayers. You thought you were a big shot, you thought you could intimidate me, guess you need to go and interact with real Italians from Brooklyn, we don't back down. Guess interacting with the Italians at U of PA weren't part of your education there.

I wish I could say I will never see you again, but, as you well know, when the sword of Damocles aka complaint is served upon you, in the upcoming civil action, we get to interact again.

You shot your wad and it went nowhere. Hopefully, since you went to active status with the bar, you are out of the state system and will have to learn how to charm people, as you strive to get billable hours to survive. Maybe real estate law or more investments for that 10% interest you are charging? Just suggestions...

BriBri's failed attempt to stealthy, stack the PUC, with his 'do what ever they were instructed to, prior to be officially appointed' people, is going to be more entertaining than the monkeys at the zoo. Gone is the experience and we will have basically the blind leading the blind...Jiffy Pop time!

Three down, 7 more to go...

Davey...remember as my shirt says, I WON and you lost!
